

ABOUT THE JOURNAL

- South Anatolia Economics Journal (SAEJ) is an international, peer-reviewed academic journal that publishes original and high-quality research in the fields of economics, administrative sciences, and social sciences.
- The journal provides a scholarly platform for advancing theoretical and empirical research that contributes to contemporary economic and social debates.
- The journal aims to support academic research and researchers by encouraging innovative, methodologically sound, and analytically rigorous studies. SAEJ particularly welcomes interdisciplinary research that integrates economic analysis with administrative and social perspectives, offering insights relevant to both academic inquiry and practical policy considerations.
- SAEJ is published monthly and accepts manuscripts in English and Turkish, reflecting its commitment to international academic exchange and scholarly diversity. All submissions are subject to a rigorous peer-review process designed to ensure originality, academic quality, and research integrity.
- The journal operates under a full Open Access model, providing free and unrestricted access to all published articles. No article processing charges (APCs) are required from authors.
- South Anatolia Economics Journal is intended for academic researchers, graduate students, and policy makers, and seeks to serve as a reliable academic reference for research and evidence-based policy analysis at national and international levels.
